After surprise communique

Nixon 'out of the Red'

Shanghai (UPI) — President Nixon flew home today after pledging, in a major concession toward improved relations with China, to reduce U.S. forces on Taiwan "as the tension in the area diminishes" and ultimately to withdraw entirely from the Nationalist stronghold.

The concession, unmatched on paper at least by a reciprocal gesture from the Peking leadership, was contained in a joint, 1,500-word communique issued yesterday evening a few hours before Nixon left for Washington aboard his "Spirit of 76" jetliner.

After a refueling stop in Alaska on the direct polar route, Nixon and his wife, Pat, were to arrive Monday evening to an elaborate airport welcome-home ceremony at Washington after completing the longest visit in a foreign country, seven days, ever recorded by an American president.

Also awaiting the President was a likely angry reception from some of his conservative supporters who regard unwavering support of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist regime on Taiwan as a cardinal tenet of their political faith.

Nationalist Chinese officials said Sunday they were "surprised and shocked" that President Nixon had agreed to withdraw U.S. forces from Taiwan in a move toward normalization of relationships between Washington and Peking.

Foreign Minister S.K. Chow and other cabinet officials met secretly Sunday night but no official statement was made on the Nixon-Chinese communique. There also was no statement from President Chiang Kai-shek.

A U.S. spokesman said American Embassy officials had not been called in to discuss the communique with the Nationalists.

Marshall Green, U.S. assistant secretary of state who traveled to China with Nixon, is due in Taipei Tuesday to brief the government on the talks between the President and Premier Chou En-lai.

The Nationalists had hoped that Nixon and Chou would find no common ground on the Taiwan issue and would not mention the island in the communique.

Officials said they were "surprised and shocked" when the communique included a promise by Nixon to reduce U.S. strength on Taiwan with the "ultimate objective" of removing all military forces and installations.

China made it clear that "liberation of Taiwan is China's internal affair" and demanded the military withdrawals as the price for establishment of full diplomatic relations between Washington and Peking.

Cagers
clinch
title

BYU forward Momi Sarkalahti gets two: one basket and one Colorado State Ram in Saturday night action. It was part of a big weekend for BYU athletics. The Cougars became the first team in WAC history to win back-to-back loop titles by whipping Wyoming 70-56 Friday. Then Saturday night, BYU dominated 105-85 run-and-gun match with CSU to run the home winning streak to 25 and season record to 23-3. Record breaking crowds of 22,948 Friday and 22,985 Saturday saw BYU take its fifth crown in 10 years. Also this weekend Cougar wrestlers fought back to tie New Mexico for the WAC title. Cougars are alive and live in Utah

Editor:
Who is to say that no longer do cougars exist in the state of Utah. The Utah State Division of Wildlife Resources seems to differ. Why if cougars are no longer with us is there still a hunting season on cougars. Before we go finding a new nickname for BYU, let's see if we can still have an old one.

Partisan issue

Editor:
In response to BYU's poor attendance at Participation '72 and Fred Feller's not-too-subtle attempt to blame the lack of interest on the Young Democrats and the College Republicans, we will point out that 1. Young Democrats worked the entire fall semester on student voter registration problems. We were the only organization on campus to publish complete voter registration information (including a map of the voting district). Besides the University, we were the only group to show any active concern at all. Yet, when Reed Wilcox appointed Fred as his assistant in charge of student voting and registration, he made no attempt to contact "the organized groups on campus which should have been (and were) interested."

2. Max Goff, co-chairman of Participation '72, informed us in early January that he had unsuccessfully tried to "stir-up" some interest for Participation '72 in the unresponsive ASBYU affairs. Wilcox, if he had examined the fruits of Participation '70, would have known that this year's program would not "be very partisan, very liberal", etc. Then again, who is Wilcox to protect us from liberalism? (The non-partisan appears to have definite partisan leanings.)

3. Mr. Feller has made little effort to work with the "organized groups" on campus. In our only meeting with Feller, he gave us several hundred posters encouraging voter registration to distribute because "ASBYU didn't want the image" of pushing political activism on campus.

In the future we suggest that if ASBYU desires to promote greater political activity (e.g., voter registration) among the students that they work with those "political organizations" having the same objective.

Blue shears Rams 105-85

By DAVE GUNN
Universe Sports Editor

After clinching the WAC title Friday night, the Cougars played the champion's part to the hilt in demolishing Colorado State Saturday, 105-85.

Friday's sluggish win against Wyoming was forgotten as the Cats burned the Ft. Collins crew time and again with their blazing fast break and smooth ball control.

THE RAMS tried to run with BYU, but they failed. Instead of trying to contain the Blue with a slow down, ball control offense, CSU tried to run and shoot against the Waitsmen. The Cougars ran and shot them to death. Paced by Kresimir Cosic's 19 point first half, the Blue ran away with the game, and increased their lead steadily until the end, when subs maimed the hardwood for the Blue.

The Blue fast break was formidable, but the Cougars shooting was probably the best the Cats have done all year. All BYU players but two shot at 50 per cent or better. Cosic was hot from all over the court and finished the evening hitting 12 of 17 from the field. He also pulled down 14 boards and ended the night with 25 points. Phil Tollestrup played his home towners and his parents, who were in the audience, with 22 points. The big Canadian hit on 11 for 21 from the field and had nine boards. Bernie Fryer went seven for 14 on his field goal attempts, and ended the evening with 20 points.

BRIAN AMBROZICH had a great evening for the Blue, pulling down nine rebounds and converting on three of six field goal attempts. Ambroch went two for two from the foul line, and ended the night with eight points. BYU's sophomore combo of Doug Richards and Bill Anderson also enjoyed daylong performances from the field. Richards went five for nine from the field and tallied 11 points, while Anderson went four for five and accounted for eight.

It was a true team victory. The Cats shot 59 per cent on 47 of 80 attempts. CSU hit on 33 of 82 attempts, 40 per cent.

Wrestlers tie UNM for mat crown

By LEE BENSON
Amateur Sports Editor

It was an unbelievable sight, BYU's wrestling coach Fred Davis was coaching, cheering, and encouraging wrestlers from the University of Utah.

Davis had a reason to cheer for the Utes. BYU had a slim lead over New Mexico in the loop mat championships, and Utah had two wrestlers going against New Mexico grapplers in the last two championship round matches. Two Utah wins would give BYU the undisputed championship. Two Redskin losses would give New Mexico the crown.

AS IT TURNED OUT, the Utes split the last two matches with the Lobos, and BYU had to settle for a tie with New Mexico for the title, 59½ to 59½.

It was the sixth time in the last seven years that BYU has won or shared the WAC title under stalwart Larson Hansen, the Cougars staged a courageous fight. Ronald Fehlberg concluded his mat career at BYU by winning his third loop championship. He defeated UNM's Don Jackson for the 150-pound title.

Randy Macy, only a freshman on the Blue mat team, also garnered a championship for the Blue. Macy took the 167-pound title, besting Steve Jantzen of CSU.

GIL KEITH tallied a second place finish for BYU in the 118-pound division, while Mike Hansen took second place honors for the Blue in the 177-pound class. Gene Patch tallied a third for BYU in the 158-pound ring of the competition.

Final Scores:
BYU 59½, UNM, 59½, Utah, 50½, Arizona 48½, CSU 32, Arizona State 29, Wyoming 26½, 118 lbs.

Cats bridle Pokes 70-56

By DAVE CLEMENS

Stan Watts thought the Cougars were too tight, Paul James thought they were too loose, and the end result was a less than impressive 70-56 BYU win over the Wyoming Cowboys Friday night.

The conference-clinching triumph was not assured until midway through the second half, but it was more a case of the Cats fighting themselves than the hapless Pokes.

STEADY Kresimir Cosic took high point honors for the Blue hoopsters with eight for 11 from the field and seven for nine from the line for 23 points. Cosic also led the Blue in rebounds with 15.

Bernie Fryer, the Cats usually hot shooting guard, started the game snake-bit, missing his first five shots from the field. After being pulled in favor of Belmont Anderson eight minutes into the first stanza, Fryer returned to hit six for 10 the rest of the way and finish with 15 points.

Senior forward Phil Tollestrup had his parents down from Canada, and perhaps wished they had been elsewhere Friday, as he cashed only two of eight attempts and ended with six points, far below his season's average. Weak-side forward Brian Ambroch, on the other hand, dominated the boards in the first half. Ambroch played one of his finest games of the season, winding up with 11 rebounds and nine talls.

BYU STARTED out the game like they wanted to confer some charity on the poor Pokes, losers of all their WAC road games. Wyoming enjoyed an 8-3 lead as the Mountain Cats went four minutes with only one field goal. But Cosic began to show signs of breaking a Cowboy streak that had held him to a total of 24 points in three previous meetings. The big center hit three straight baskets to put BYU back in the game, but the lead changed hands twice more and the halftime count stood at 33-28.

The Cats hit 41 per cent in the half and could only thank Wyoming's shooting for the slim lead. The Pokes placed a few less per cent from the floor and a miserable 22 per cent from the foul stripe.

Bennion 'plays' for BYU

By ROLF KOECHER
Universe Staff Writer

"If their mascot can make shots like that, what can their team do?" pondered many perplexed players and coaches in amazed tributes to this year's Cosmo, John Bennion.

Bennion, a David O. McKay scholar from Palo Alto, Calif., revealed his inner self in a mock operation during Saturday night's halftime as his achievements were

'Peanuts' auditions

Charlie Brown is coming to town.

At last, his BYU counterpart will be here as the lead in Dr. Preston Gledhill's planned production, "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown." Singing and acting auditions will be held in B-201 HFAC 4:10 to 6 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, and Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m.

announced to the crowd. "After all that, quipped Chris Dowling, vice-president of Athletics, "I'm having trouble getting the mask off his swollen head."

Knowing from the start that the crowds would expect him to continue the half-court shot trend established last year, Bennion said, "At first I was worried about making the shots, but after a while I realized that I could hit them."

Last year, long before anticipating becoming Cosmo, "I remember sitting in the stands watching Chris and thinking, 'I sure feel sorry for next year's Cosmo.'"

Commenting on "security" measures necessary to hide his identity, the six-foot-six mascot said that his style of shooting often gave him away. "There aren't many people this tall that are left-handed. Most people who had played basketball with me guessed my identity."

Bennion felt that his mission was to add life and sparkle to home games and to promote good will on the road.

A mountain of black water

One man said, "I was crossing the bridge to my house at 9:30 when I saw the water coming. There's no way to describe it, except like an ocean. I never ran so fast in my life."

"It looked like a big mountain of black water," said another.

"I saw one of my neighbors in the yard when the water hit," said a woman. "In a minute she was waist deep and she ran back inside the house. Then I saw her at a second story window in the house, and in a few minutes the whole house was gone."

A 30-foot wave of water and mud that smashed through a flood-swollen West Virginia dam killed at least 50 persons and left 284 missing, Gov. Arch Moore reported yesterday at the scene of the disaster.

After three days of heavy rain, the mile and one-half long earthen dam burst open Saturday and a mountainous wall of water and sludge rolled through at least a dozen mining communities and destroyed or damaged an estimated 1,500 homes.

As millions of gallons of the slimy liquid oozed further along the valley below the dam, the destructive force lessened until finally the water emptied into the river 18 miles away.

It took more than an hour for the flood-tide to cover the 18-mile course.

Busing votes up

The Senate votes this week on whether it will reverse a narrowly approved measure forbidding federal courts to order forced busing as a means of integrating public schools, while the House opens hearings on a proposal to ban busing by a constitutional amendment.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield telegraphed his Democratic colleagues over the weekend, urging that they be present for the vote tomorrow.

Mansfield is seeking to overturn the passage of Sen. Robert P. Griffin's amendment which would render the federal government powerless to demand busing as a desegregation measure.

Mansfield blamed absenteeism for the vote on which Griffin's amendment was approved. He and Scott have proposed a milder measure, approved before the vote on the Griffin amendment, which would permit limited busing of children, but not to schools of inferior quality and not across school district lines unless so ordered by the Supreme Court.

Both measures will be up for a vote again tomorrow and the Senate will have to choose between the two.

Army snooping unconstitutional

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., Senate chairman of the Senate constitutional rights subcommittee has asked the Supreme Court to outlaw military surveillance of civilians.

Ervin hopes to argue before the Supreme Court this spring that army snooping into activities of civilians should be declared a violation of the First Amendment of the Constitution.

The case was launched by several individuals including conscientious objectors and groups representing antiwar and civil rights causes.

Nixon's next trip

President Nixon is expected to begin his visit to Moscow May 22 and may brief NATO allies in Bonn while on his way home from the Soviet capital, diplomatic officials reported over the weekend.

U.S. officials said the U.S. is intent on briefing allies regarding Nixon's trips to China and the Soviet Union.

Japan and Nationalist China have been particularly anxious to make sure their interests are not hurt by the President's negotiations with leaders of China.

Assistant Secretary of State Marshall Green, now with Nixon in China, will visit 10 Asian nations for briefings on the President's talks with Premier Chou En-lai, officials said.

Green will start his two week tour when Nixon leaves China today, and will visit Japan, Nationalist China, Korea, the Philippines, South Vietnam, Indonesia, Australia, New Zealand, Malaysia and Singapore. In another development it was learned that Secretary of State William P. Rogers wants to visit Latin America for two weeks between Nixon's Chinese and Russian trips.

AN OPEN LETTER TO STUDENTS OF BYU

The new ASBYU Office of Student Community Service (replacing the Office of Student Relations) has been established to promote a new line of communication between the students and the community aimed directly at the needs and problems of the community and the student. We are happy to announce that due to the organization of this office it will be possible to make a variety of community service projects available to all campus groups throughout the entire school year anytime at the convenience of the participating group.

Community service projects have been researched and catalogued with the objectives in mind of providing the student with an experience that will give him an opportunity to give of his talents, his knowledge, his love and his care in service to other less fortunate individuals in the community around him, influencing them to become better individuals spiritually, emotionally, physically and morally. We want to give the student an experience that will make him aware of the surrounding environment and the work that needs to be done to improve its ecology. With all the verbal tearing down of the establishment being done by the young people today, we want to build up the community and its ecology not by screams of protest but by creative and constructive action.

Representatives from the office would like to make worthwhile service projects with these goals in mind available to Elder's Quorums who are looking for projects or Relief Societies who are searching for compassionate service projects or the MIA which might be looking for service hours to complete a requirement for the Master M-Man or Golden Gleaner award or a small ward family that is hunting for a worthwhile service project that will bring them closer together or any club or other campus group interested in service hours.

Because we feel that our program is of such great value we have produced a stimulating and exciting 13 minute film presentation under the direction of a professional film company that is available to any interested campus group.

Our purpose is not to pressure any group into taking a project, but to make them available. No group is under obligation to accept any project. Some of the proposed projects that our office has researched are: recycle projects, working with pre-schoolers at the Provo Family Training Center, save the Provo River project, working with the children in the American Fork Training School, cleaning an elderly lady's yard, and painting homes. Big Brother and Big Sister Program, Provo Beautification projects, providing personal visits to some of the nursing homes, rehabilitating Y Mountain, Sub for Santa project, helping elementary school girls and boys to a Family Home Evening, a football game or other activity in the Buddy Program, working on the Uintah National Forest projects, putting on a Family Home Evening for the children at the American Fork Training School, and even a project to landscape a park east of the Provo Temple.

The gateway to the campus of the "Y" reads: "Enter to Learn, Go Forth to Serve." We the students of BYU want to live up to that admonition. The best time to start anything is right now and we want to start to build a better world. Our motto: "Take a Giant Step for Mankind in Service to Others" is the hope we have for all students. We hope that you will take advantage of this service we can offer to you or your campus group interested in "Taking a Giant Step for Mankind."

Sincerely,

Robert G. Jones, Vice President
Office of Student Community Service
